

More than just pumps

FLUX-GERÄTE expands its presence in Scandinavia Pump expert Telfa – FLUX's strong new sales partner in Sweden

FLUX has acquired a strong partner on the international market with the renowned pump specialist Telfa: with immediate effect, Telfa is the newly appointed sales partner for FLUX products in Sweden.

Two companies, same standards: top quality and customer care

Like FLUX, Telfa is well-known for its highly qualified customer support and after-sales service. With five sales offices and a large logistics centre in Tranås, the pump specialist offers the ideal conditions for customer support on-site and short delivery times. These advantages combined with the high quality of its products make Telfa the perfect sales partner for FLUX. Telfa has over 40 years of experience with pumps and pump systems on the Swedish market. It is part of the global OEM Group.

"In Telfa, we have a partner that has been established as a successful pump expert in Sweden for many years and shares the same values as FLUX like customer focus, quality and reliability. We look forward to a successful collaboration that will enable us to further expand our customer satisfaction levels and market position in Sweden," explains the responsible FLUX Area Sales Manager Jasmin Kolašinac.

FLUX-GERÄTE GMBH

In 1950, the world's first electric drum pump was named FLUX. In the meanwhile, the undisputed pioneer in the area of barrel pump technology possesses outstanding know-how and experience in many other areas of pump technology. The wide product range now extends from the most different types of pumps with motors, flow meters and accessories through special system solutions such as the drum emptying systems to custom-designed systems for plant engineering. The internationally operating German family-owned company with its seven subsidiaries and numerous representatives delivers its products in more than 100 countries worldwide.
